POLAND'S HIRED HANDS BETTER OFF THAN ARE RUSSIA'S

Polish Farmers' Interest For Communism Is Diminished

(Note: The landed proprietor still flourishes in Poland, and his "hired hands" are far better off than the "independent" farmworkers of the Soviet. H. R. Knickerbocker declares in the eleventh article of his Baltic series.)

OLYKA, Poland, May 23—(INS)—A span of white Arab horses drove us at a spanking gait through the cutting wind to the castle of Olyka, 300 miles southeast of Warsaw, just a step away from the border of the Soviet Union.

Here, on the estate of one of the greatest Polish magnates, Prince Janusz Radziwill, they live like they did on the estates of the nobles of old Russia. Our host, the young Prince Edmund, a cool, handsome young man in tweeds, with an Oxford accent, born in 1907 in the Radziwill Palace on the Wilhelmstrasse Berlin, which is now a part of the German Foreign Office, can see across the Russian border a part of the estate that used to belong to his family.

Over there the men who used to be farm-hands for the Radziwills, now collective farmers. They have had 18 years of Bolshevism. The farm-hands here today have had capitalism, all that time. How do the farm-hands here live compared to the collective farmers across the border?

That is impossible to answer specifically because no stranger in the Soviet Union is allowed to come that close to the border. But it is possible to compare the standard of living here with the standards of the first-class Soviet collective farm "Frunze" recently visited near Ivanovo-Vozneshensk.

This makes the best comparison of any on this trip. For it was precisely the farmhands, the poorest on the agricultural population, "the land proletariat" as the Bolsheviks call them, for which the Communist revolution on the land in Russia was made.

They killed all the landlords in Russia. Or drove them abroad. Here in Poland this landlord continues to live in the castle that was sacked and plundered so many times since its foundation 400 years ago that nobody knows the number. All know however that the last time was just eighteen years ago and shells from its last bombardment are still sticking in its reconstructed walls.

They are still here, just a figurative stone's throw away, but the young prince and his bride have gone about the reconstruction of their home with the same imperturbable tenacity that has brought the Radziwills back to build again after every war from the days of the broadsword to the era of the machinegun.

The prince's apartments are modern as a Fifth Avenue flat, and not more pretentious. He had his book-keeper make out a complete list of the income of everybody on the estate from himself to the shepherds. He draws a salary and keeps books even on his food. He works at his job. That is more than can be said for every Polish magnate, but this one does.

We were chiefly interested in the condition of his poorest employees, precisely because they are the people the Bolsheviks are most interested in. Here is a statement of their incomes, and for the purpose of summing up and general comparison between Capitalism and Communism on the land, there are included parallel income statements gathered in Lithuania and Finland.

CARE OF LAWNS IS THE SUBJECT OF GRANGERS

Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Terry Are Hosts to Members at Langhorne

HAVE PLANT EXCHANGE

LANGHORNE, May 24—Proper care of the lawn was the question discussed at a meeting of Middletown Grange at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Terry, Wednesday evening. Nineteen members attended.

Ellis Tomlinson spoke briefly of destroying crab grass in the lawns and one of his recommendations was that it might be pulled out by the roots. There, however, is one objection to this, said Mr. Tomlinson, and that is the desirable grass will also be destroyed. If this is the case, the entire lawn will have to be re-sodded.

Mr. Terry, the master of the Grange and who had charge of the brief business session, read a paper which had been prepared by Mrs. Hannah G. C. Pickering, Woodbourne. This told of the damage done by the Japanese beetles and some of the birds which destroy this pest which makes its appearance annually. Included among these birds are the purple grackle, European starling, cardinal, meadow lark, cat bird, English sparrow and robin.

The business session included the appointment of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse G. Webster and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Tomlinson as delegates to the Spring meeting of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, No. 22, at the Woodside Community House on Wednesday, June 5. At the conclusion of the meeting there was a plant exchange.

The next meeting will take place in the Friends' school house on Wednesday evening, June 5.

75,000 WILL GRADUATE FROM PA. HIGH SCHOOLS

Between 12,000 and 15,000 of Number Will Enter Higher Institutions

DETERMINED TO WIN

By Sydney H. Eiges

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, May 24—(INS)—Eager, idealistic and brave of heart, a small army of 75,000 boys and girls will be graduated from Pennsylvania high schools in May and June of this year and projected into a world that is at present undergoing treatment for major social and economic ailments.

Spurred onward and upward to still greater achievements by commencement speakers who will hold forth in every section of the state, they nevertheless seem destined to find the road ahead rockier and steeper than it was for classes some years back. No obstacle, however, their commencement orators will tell them, is too great to be conquered by determination and will power.

The 75,000 high school graduates this year will set a new record, according to Dr. James N. Rule. The number, about 5,000 more than the year previous, includes many young persons returned to school as a result of NRA codes outlawing child labor.

Between 12,000 and 15,000 of the June graduates will enter colleges or other institutions of higher learning, Dr. Rule estimates. Although the prospects are disheartening, most of them will seek work this summer to earn part of their college expenses.

A few thousand more, rebuffed in their efforts to find jobs, will return to take post graduate courses in their high schools, according to Dr. Rule.

Girls especially, who graduated from academic and English courses, will return to take up commercial work and learn typewriting and shorthand.

But more than 50,000 of the young graduates will come to grips with

Auto Crash Injures A Doctor and His Mother

SOUTH LANGHORNE, May 24—Dr. Herbert R. Talmadge, 33, of 666 Sanford avenue, Newark, N. J., and his mother, Mrs. Kate Talmadge, 55, were injured when their automobile crashed into a concrete culvert and turned over in a ditch on the Lincoln Highway yesterday.

The doctor received lacerations and possible fracture of the left knee, and his mother has compound fracture of the nose and contusions of the head.

The two were taken to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., by Herbert Oliver, South Langhorne.

According to Highway Patrolman Patterson, of the South Langhorne barracks, Dr. Talmadge pulled out of traffic in an attempt to pass a truck operated by Samuel Eisenberg, of East Third avenue, Brooklyn, who was traveling in the same direction. Dr. Talmadge then swerved to the right of the truck and struck the culvert. His car was wrecked.

LEAVES ESTATE OF $9,000 TO WIDOW AND FOUR CHILDREN

Leaving an estate of $9000, Abraham Rosenberger, Warrington farmer, named the Doylestown National Bank and Trust Company executor, according to his will probated in the Register of Wills' office, at Doylestown.

To four daughters, Flora Rosenberger, Bertha R. Snyder, Irene Tenley and Miriam Rosenberger, he gave the sum of $300 each. His widow will inherit the residue of the estate and at her death a son, Paul, will receive the farm. The personal estate was valued at $6500, and real estate, $2500.

Upon the death of the widow, the remainder of the estate will be divided equally among the children.

Mrs. Amanda Miller, of Perkasie, who named as executors, Estella Heavener and Mary A. Strouse, left an estate of $2700. To a daughter, Estella, she bequeathed all her furniture and belongings with exception of a desk, which will be given to Etta Stauffer.

Four granddaughters, Mildred, Mary, Marcella and Harriet, were bequeathed $15 apiece.

HONEST COLLEGIANS

Are college students more honest than they were a generation ago? The result of ballots cast by the senior class of Princeton would indicate they are.

Noel Coward was preferred to Shakespeare as a playwright, 135 to 107. That is beyond a doubt an honest verdict, no matter how it may reflect on the judgment of the Princeton upper-classmen.

Their favorite poem is Kipling's "If" which speaks poorly for class appreciation of poetry, but much for ambitious youth.

McClelland Barclay, magazine cover illustrator, was given the verdict over Rembrandt as the favorite artist of the seniors, who will have to live about 40 years more before they grow up to Rembrandt. Apparently no vote was taken on favorite composers, but this class, so free from hypocrisy, would certainly not have rated Beethoven, Bach and Brahms over Jerome Kern.

The boys voted Katharine Cornell their favorite stage actress and Ginger Rogers the preferred movie actress; it is a question of taste. "Anthony Adverse" is their favorite novel, which is a question of bad taste. But the vote, all the way, was the expression of youth, and incorruptible youth.

Princeton boys are not taking anyone's word; they are finding out for themselves. Ten years hence they will look back at this election and grin, for those who do not become bond salesmen will by that time have learned a lot.

APPEAL OF DEMAGOGUERY

Citing Huey Long as a "horrible example," Ed. Howe, the sage of Potato Hill, observes that "it is easy for anyone to win in politics, if the candidate is able to tell the demagogue story gracefully. The demagogue story is thousands of years old, and always the same; all dishonest voters ask of a man telling it is that he be eloquent, dramatic, a good liar and a rogue like themselves."

His inspiration for these remarks were the conflicting statements by the Kingfish that his father was poor and ignorant, and kept in that condition by the unscrupulous rich, and by Huey's two lawyer brothers that their father was a successful farmer, better educated and more intelligent than Huey, and never ground down by anybody.

The average voter professes to know that all politicians are liars and that all political promises are valueless, and yet the average voter is quicker to follow the demagogue than the few sincere men in public life. It is a political truism that the best promiser is the best vote-getter.

The electors don't grow out of their early fondness for fairy tales. They like to read and hear about the poor peasant boy who beats the rich and cruel king or giant, although deep down in their hearts they know the political version is just so much hooey (sometimes spelled huey). Another modern version in the political primer is the rich man who enters politics to protect the little fellow from the rich and unscrupulous bankers and capitalists.

Dr. Townsend asks the public for $100,000,000 to push his plan. Always somewhat vague, the good Doctor doesn't say if he will have it in nickels or in dimes.

These incomes statements were personally gathered on the Radziwill Estate here, on a small estate near Kaujala, Finland, middle-sized farm near Kovno, Lithuania, and the Fraunze Collective in the Soviet Union. There are exceptional elements, no doubt, in each, but the comparison is useful.

It shows that this Russian collective farmer receives about 800 pounds less grain than this Finnish farm hand, about 110 pounds less than the Pole, and not half as much as the Lithuanian. It should be remembered that this grain is not to sell. It is to eat.

The ration of potatoes is larger for the Russian. It is the cheapest food. All four men have about the same amount of land, namely, around one acre, for a garden, and presumably could raise about the same amount of potatoes to eat or feed their pigs.

The collective farmer has half as much milk, measured in quarts or in cows, as the capitalist farmhands. He has 1 pig to the 2 to 6 pigs of the others. Finally, his cash payment is $24 compared to their $80 a year.

In all four cases the landlord or the collective farm furnishes lodging, fuel and light. But the lodgings of the capitalist farmhands were far more commodious, cleaner and more comfortable than those of the collective farmers.

Communists may object that the collective farms in Russia have just been organized and have not had the chance to show what they can do. That is true, but one can only describe the present and not the future. They may also object that these three capitalist farms are not typical, but to an outside observer they seem to be quite typical of just the sort of farms which were destroyed at the outset of the Bolshevik revolution.

Finally, Communists may object that no mention has been made of the cul-

One thing is sure, that interest on the part of the poorest Polish farmers for Communism, which was strong when the Bolsheviks took the land from the landlords and gave it to the peasants, has diminished to something like zero since Moscow drove the peasants into the collectives.

All New Thrills With Big Circus This Year

With one hundred double-length, silver-hued railroad cars, bearing 1600 people, seven herds of elephants, 1099 menagerie animals and 700 horses, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus will arrive in Philadelphia, Monday for afternoon and night exhibitions.

The big top, seating 16,000 persons, covers seven rings and stages, a huge hippodrome track and encircling grandstands, and is one of 31 great tents, among them the menagerie, sheltering the world's largest traveling zoo. In its center this season will be seen Col. Tim McCoy's Indian Village, with Sioux, Crow, Shawnee and Arapaho warriors encamped. Col. Mc-

Coy, the screen's most outstanding western star, will himself lead his congress of rough riders of the world in the main performances and in the wild west.

The Greatest Show on Earth offers scores of foreign features new to America this year, including a Saharan racing caravan of acrobatic liberty camels and Touregs; a Moroccan sixty-horse liberty act; the largest aerial ballet ever produced, headed by the Annetta and Nelletra troupes of revolving flyers, the Jennies and the Lydia. Fresh from Europe are the Walkmirs, the Antaleks, the Buemangs, the Romeoos, the Maschinoss, the Demenatis, the Willos, the Torrence-Dolores, Lauries, the Polis, the Rooneys, aerial novelty sensations. The Loyal-Repenski's, the Rieffennachs, the Walters, famous bareback riding troupes; the two Guice aerial comedy troupes on the lofty bars; the two renowned Wallenda troupes of high wire thrillers; the Otaris, why fly in mass somersaults from an aerial cross; the Flying Concellos, with Antoinette, only girl to accomplish a two-and-a-half mid-air somersault to a hand-to-hand catch; the Flying Comets; the great Con Colleano, only artist ever to achieve a forward somersault on the tight wire; Dorothy Herbert, madcap rider of reinless jumping horses over fire hurdles, and Hugo and Mario, human projectiles, who are fired at the same instant from the mouth of a giant cannon across the upper reaches of the big top—these are some of the most prominent features of the superb 1935 Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey program, to say nothing of Mary, the famed rhinoceros of the Tarzan motion picture, which is a newcomer to a rhino colony in the vast menagerie.

given the warmest, mellowest, and six inches apart, as in the old style best drained patch in the garden. La-hill manner with two or three plants on when the frost danger is past to a hill. Greater production and easier cultivation is claimed for the row type. The one warning concerning their cultivation is not to work the patch while the leaves of the beans are wet, either with dew or from rain. Rust seems to follow. A rust spotted pod ruins it for culinary use and this is about the only disaster likely to happen to a string bean.

The choice of varieties is first of all whether you want to grow green beans or wax beans. Both have their advocates as to superiority of flavor. Then you may choose whether you want a round podded or a flat podded bean.

Some claim the round pods are more tender than the flat, although there seems no sound basis for the argument.

There are numerous excellent varieties from which to choose and almost any sort offered by a reliable seed house will give excellent results. The stringless greenpod is offered by all, a standard variety, various strains having been developed from the original variety.

String beans are now as often grown in rows, the individual plants shown below.

Beans should not be planted until the ground is warm. They are very tender to frost or to cold cutting winds in their younger stages. Gardens with light, warm, sandy soil can get an earlier bean start than those with heavy colder soil.

HONEST COLLEGIANS

Are college students more honest than they were a generation ago? The result of ballots cast by the senior class of Princeton would indicate they are.

Noel Coward was preferred to Shakespeare as a playwright, 135 to 107. That is beyond a doubt an honest verdict, no matter how it may reflect on the judgment of the Princeton upper-classmen.

Their favorite poem is Kipling's "If" which speaks poorly for class appreciation of poetry, but much for ambitious youth.

McClelland Barclay, magazine cover illustrator, was given the verdict over Rembrandt as the favorite artist of the seniors, who will have to live about 40 years more before they grow up to Rembrandt. Apparently no vote was taken on favorite composers, but this class, so free from hypocrisy, would certainly not have rated Beethoven, Bach and Brahms over Jerome Kern.

The boys voted Katharine Cornell their favorite stage actress and Ginger Rogers the preferred movie actress; it is a question of taste. "Anthony Adverse" is their favorite novel, which is a question of bad taste. But the vote, all the way, was the expression of youth, and incorruptible youth.

Princeton boys are not taking anyone's word; they are finding out for themselves. Ten years hence they will look back at this election and grin, for those who do not become bond salesmen will by that time have learned a lot.

Citing Huey Long as a "horrible example," Ed. Howe, the sage of Potato Hill, observes that "it is easy for anyone to win in politics, if the candidate is able to tell the demagogue story gracefully. The demagogue story is thousands of years old, and always the same; all dishonest voters ask of a man telling it is that he be eloquent, dramatic, a good liar and a rogue like themselves."

His inspiration for these remarks were the conflicting statements by the Kingfish that his father was poor and ignorant, and kept in that condition by the unscrupulous rich, and by Huey's two lawyer brothers that their father was a successful farmer, better educated and more intelligent than Huey, and never ground down by anybody.

The average voter professes to know that all politicians are liars and that all political promises are valueless, and yet the average voter is quicker to follow the demagogue than the few sincere men in public life. It is a political truism that the best promiser is the best vote-getter.

The electors don't grow out of their early fondness for fairy tales. They like to read and hear about the poor peasant boy who beats the rich and cruel king or giant, although keep down in their hearts they know the political version is just so much hoey (sometimes spelled huey). Another modern version in the political primer is the rich man who enters politics to protect the little fellow from the rich and unscrupulous bankers and capitalists.

Dr. Townsend asks the public for $100,000,000 to push his plan. Always somewhat vague, the good Doctor doesn't say if he will have it in nickels or in dimes.

life's realities almost at once at a time when even their elders are finding it hard to obtain employment. Laws against child labor and the necessity for first reabsorbing hundreds of thousands of adult men and women into jobs have made the prospects for the young high school graduates dark.

The Department of Public Instruction is aware of the problem and its attendant social maladjustment and emotional unbalance and is giving it attention, according to Dr. Rule. The great handicap is that upon graduation from high school the state's educational contact with the child usually ends. However, in the past few years almost 100,000 young persons between the ages of 16 and 25 have been attending emergency classes taught by unemployed teachers paid with federal funds.

"Development of a balanced program of work, guidance and recreation for Pennsylvania youth is one of the most important problems facing the Commonwealth," according to Dr. Rule.

"In recent years, the public schools have been giving more attention to the after-school problems of our Pennsylvania boys and girls," he pointed out.

"Teachers are receiving special training in guidance and in counseling with high school students, and in most of our modern high schools notable results have been achieved."

Dr. Rule said the Department was steadily at work devising new courses of instruction to enable youth to meet the changing conditions in society. In this work the Department has been aided by a grant from the Carnegie Foundation.

BRAIDED RUGS AND MATS CAN BE MADE
VERY WELL AT HOME

By RHANDENA A. ARMSTRONG
(Home Economics Representative)

Braided rugs can be made at home from a number of materials.

Among those are cotton or wool blankets, cotton materials of good weight, heavy or light weight woolen materials, corduroy, crotone, suits, coats, and dresses too worn for remodeling. Strong cotton or linen thread and a No. 1 or 2 needle are the only other materials needed.

The design of the rug is developed by the arrangement of different colors in the braid. By combining two strands of a darker color with one of lighter for several rows of braid, then surrounding it with 1, 2, or 3 rows of solid color, then back to mixed colors, and then more plain makes an interesting design.

A general scheme may be used, keeping the center in a medium dark color combination, surrounding it with bands of graduating color going from darker to lighter and back to darker, toward the edge separating each value by rows of solid color, and then finishing the edge with 3 to 5 rows of the plain.

Small braided mats offer an excellent opportunity for adding a decorative touch of color to a room as well as providing protection for polished wood surfaces and for chair seats. Silk materials, such as hose, underwear, and dresses, as well as fine cottons and wools may be utilized in mats but are not durable enough for floor coverings. The individual charm of the mat grows out of using soft, pleasing colors combined in good proportion in spacing and with good construction.

Detailed information on the construction of braided rugs and mats may be obtained from my office at Doylestown.

These incomes statements were personally gathered on the Radziwill Estate here, on a small estate near Kauala, Finland, a middle-sized farm near Kovno, Lithuania, and the Fraunze Collective in the Soviet Union. There are exceptional elements, no doubt, in each, but the comparison is useful.

It shows that this Russian collective farmer receives about 800 pounds less grain than this Finnish farm hand, about 110 pounds less than the Pole, and not half as much as the Lithuanian. It should be remembered that this grain is not to sell. It is to eat.

The ration of potatoes is larger for the Russian. It is the cheapest food. All four men have about the same amount of land, namely, around one acre, for a garden, and presumably could raise about the same amount of potatoes to eat or feed their pigs.

The collective farmer has half as much milk, measured in quarts or in cows, as the capitalist farmhands. He has 1 pig to the 2 to 6 pigs of the others. Finally, his cash payment is $24 compared to their $80 a year.

In all four cases the landlord or the collective farm furnishes lodging, fuel and light. But the lodgings of the capitalist farmhands were far more commodious, cleaner and more comfortable than those of the collective farmers.

BURLINGTON WINS OVER BRISTOL IN MEET HERE

By Jack Orr

Led by "Blake" O'Farrior, 6 ft, 2 in. senior, Burlington high rolled up a 52½ to 33½ score over the Cardinal and Gray of Bristol on the local high school, yesterday, in a track and field meet.

Burlington's relay team of O'Farrior, Cooke, Wojack, and Kessler showed their heels to the Bristol quartet although Jack Evans put forth a courageous spurt just failing to catch "Cowboy" Kessler, Burlington anchor man.

NEWPORTVILLE BREAKS INTO THE WIN COLUMN

Fielding brilliantly behind the effective hurling of "Henny" Morgan, the Newportville A. A. team finally broke into the win column of the Lower Bucks County League, beating the Bristol A. A. club, 6-1, on Leedom's field last night.

Four fast double-plays in the last four innings enabled the Newporthers to chalk up the win. The twin-killings set up a new mark for the Lower Bucks team to shoot at inasmuch as they were made in consecutive innings. Two of the two-ply killings came in the midst of what appeared to be threatening rallies by the A. A. team.

"Henny" Morgan with his mates playing errorless ball, handled his job in fine fashion. Up until the seventh he had allowed but one blow and finished the fray with three hits against him. Newportville made seven hits off the delivery of Ralph Stromp, "Henny" Mellow and "George" Ritter led the attack on Stromp with two safe hits apiece.

Seven Years Ago Today

"Bill" Missera, outfielder for the St. Ann's nine, helped "Mike" Castor to chalk up a victory for the Saints over the Hibernians on the St. Ann's diamond. Missera had two hits and a walk in the 5-1 victory for the Dorrance street boys. Holden was the losing twirler. A hit by "Johnny" Brady, a stolen base, and a single by John Leyden scored the only Hibernian run. "Angie" McClafferty featured the game by four wonderful catches in left field. One of these robbed Fields of a possible double or triple with the bags loaded in the sixth.

SPECIAL CLOSET VERY CONVENIENT FOR THE CLEANING EQUIPMENT

By Rhonda A. Armstrong
Home Economics Representative

Every home should have a special closet for cleaning equipment. Some homes find them so convenient and energy-saving that they have two, one on the first floor and another on the second.

As a convenient type, a closet with a shelf placed 12 to 14 inches from the top for cleaning supplies, such as oils, soaps, waxes, etc. In the bottom of the shelf and on the walls are hooks for broom, mops, brushes, and cleaning cloths. This shelf should be high enough for the longest piece of equipment to clear the floor. It is well, too, to have floor space enough for a vacuum cleaner.

All equipment should have its place. It should be put away clean and ready for use the next time. Oily mops and cloths should be hung in the open air as spontaneous combustion is the cause of many fires.

TRANSFERS OF REAL ESTATE

Jehovah hurls it forth anew
Upon the lightning, bold and free—
And who shall say, with little rules,
His Promised Child shall be?

But where he dwells, nor whence he came
Nor what his race, or creed or name,
Nor even if the land he loves
Will give him everlasting fame.

He may be lovely as a dream
Or small and frail, with young eyes dim,

But eyes that see immortal things
If this be truly him!

His ears may not hear earth's commands
As swiftly as his brethren's do,

But it is written he shall hear,
Immortal music, clear and true.
